Henry Ward Ranger. National Academician and considered one of America's Brooklyn. Mrs. Larason died yesterday at her residence, 1980 Sixty-fifth street, Brooklyn. Mrs. Larason was born in Philadelphia seventy-four years ago and was the widow of Robert G. Larason, an importer. She is survived by two daughters. seventh Street Studio Building, 27 West Sixty-seventh street. Cardiac trouble, from which he had been a sufferer for years, was the cause of death.

Ranger ranked high among Amer-painters. Sir Aifred East, one of remost British artists, who died recently, called him the greatest land-grape painter of his day. His best known canvases include "High Bridge" known ranvases include "High Bridge" and "Spring Wood" in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, with "The Top of the Hill" in the Corcoran Gallery at Washington and "East River Idyl" in the Carnegie Institute Gallery at Pittsburg. The works of Mr. Ranger form part of many well known collections in this country and Europe. He himself estimated recently that 200 of his larver ranvases are owned in the United States new. The Luxembourg Gallery in Parts benered him with a request for his portrait to be added to the collection of notable artists there, but the war prevented the work from being done.

Painted Boyhood Scenes.

Born in Syracuse, N. Y., in January, 1858, much of his work commemorated scenes made familiar to him in his youth. He was educated in the public schools and went to Syracuse University until his sophomore year. Then, after studying in this country for several year, he took up art in England, France and Holtand, remaining abroad until the late '80s.
